

Georgiy Bobashev

Dr. Georgiy Bobashev is a nonresident fellow in the Economics Studies program at the Brookings Institution. He has been a senior research statistician with the Research Triangle Institute since 1998.

Dr. Bobashev is an expert in complex systems analysis, mathematical modeling and statistical methods. He has been leading a growing modeling team and directing projects that combine biological, behavioral, epidemiological, policy and economical components. Dr. Bobashev is providing methodological leadership to project teams of statisticians and programmers and has published on dynamical systems modeling and applied statistical methods.

[August 2009]