

Ian Dubin

Associate Director Brookings Executive Education

Ian Dubin is the Associate Director of Brookings Executive Education. He is responsible for the planning and execution of seminars on a range of topics, including the policy process in Washington, dealing with Congress, business strategies for government agencies, and foreign policy issues. He is also the Director of the Brookings Institution's Legis Fellows Program, which enables federal executive branch officials to serve in the House or Senate.

Prior to joining Brookings Executive Education, Ian worked in civic education for a variety of organizations since 2002. He has been responsible for planning and implementing programs, managing outreach and external relationships with Congress, the administration and private sector organizations to recruit speakers. Previously, Ian has worked on Capitol Hill as a Fellow.

Ian received his B.A. in political science from the University of Iowa and his J.D., cum laude, from Capital University Law School in Columbus, Ohio. Although he is admitted to the Illinois, District of Columbia and U.S. Supreme Court bars, he is not actively engaged in the practice of law.
