PREFACE

In recent years, conflict, violence and, sometimes, natural disasters have uprooted half a million Yemenis in their own country. After fleeing their homes, these internally displaced persons (IDPs) continue to be exposed to a range of particular challenges and risks. Life as an IDP often is very difficult and is characterized by uncertainty about when they will find a solution to their plight.

Assisting, protecting and finding solutions for IDPs primarily are responsibilities of the Government. Experience around the world underscores that having a national policy for addressing internal displacement is a key indicator of national solidarity towards IDPs and of national responsibility to resolve their situation. A national IDP policy also can serve to enhance coordination and resourcing of national and international efforts.

The Government of the Republic of Yemen, under the leadership of the Prime Minister His Excellency Salim Basindowa, is committed to assist and find durable solutions for IDPs in Yemen and is prioritizing such efforts during Yemen's transitional process. As the Transitional Program for Stabilization and Development in Yemen 2012-2014 recognizes, strengthening the national legal and policy framework for vulnerable persons including IDPs will improve not only the lives of IDPs but also can contribute to the stability of Yemen overall.

The National Policy to Address and Resolve Internal Displacement in the Republic of Yemen was prepared further to a decision of the Prime Minister on 17 November 2012 commissioning the Ministry of Foreign Affairs, the Ministry of Planning and International Cooperation, and the Executive Unit for Internally Displaced Persons to develop a national policy for resolving internal displacement, in collaboration with the United Nations High Commissioner for Refugees (UNHCR).

A highly consultative process engaging relevant Government ministries and offices, local authorities, civil society, host communities, the United Nations, international non-governmental organizations, donors and most importantly IDPs and returnees themselves greatly enriched the document and enhances its authority.

The adoption by Cabinet of this Policy in June 2013 makes Yemen the second country in the Middle East region and one of over 20 countries worldwide that has adopted a national IDP policy. Covering IDPs from conflict as well as natural disasters, the Policy seeks to comprehensively address and resolve internal displacement in Yemen through three goals: preventing future involuntary displacement; assisting and protecting IDPs and host communities; and finding safe and lasting solutions for IDPs, including by supporting their return and the reconstruction of conflict-affected areas. Priority actions for achieving each of these goals are specified in the Policy, as are coordination arrangements within Government, namely the creation of a Supreme Committee for Internally Displaced Persons, as well as collaboration with civil society and the international community.

The adoption of the policy is a significant landmark for Yemen and it will help to advance all of those goals without delay.

Moving forward, of vital importance will be the comprehensive and robust implementation of the policy in order to find durable solutions for IDPs in Yemen.

The international community encouraged the development of the Policy and welcomes its adoption by Cabinet.

The Executive Unit for IDPs led the effort to develop the Policy and will continue to play a leading role in its implementation. UNHCR is pleased to have assisted the Government of Yemen throughout the process and will remain a strong advocate for supporting the Policy's implementation.

The Executive Unit for IDPs and UNHCR express deep appreciation to His Excellency Prime Minister Basindowa for his leadership, to the Cabinet for their engagement in the process and for prioritizing adoption of this Policy considering all of the other challenges currently facing Yemen, and for all stakeholders who contributed to the Policy's development.

INTRODUCTION

Background

Internal displacement is one of the challenges currently facing the people and the Government of the Republic of Yemen. Conflict and violence in recent years, in particular the wars in the Governorate of Sa'ada (2004-2010) , the crisis of 2011, and confrontations in the Governorate of Abyan (2011-2) have displaced nearly half a million Yemenis in their own country as "internally displaced persons" (IDPs)⁽¹⁾. Natural disasters, such as floods, landslides, rockslides and earthquakes, also cause internal displacement in Yemen.

Having been forced to flee their homes, IDPs are exposed to a range of challenges and risks. IDPs suddenly find themselves without shelter, food, water, and other basic needs, separated from their community and sometimes from their family, disrupted in their education, and cut off from their usual livelihood and coping mechanisms. They urgently must find new ways to ensure their safety and survival in an unfamiliar place, sometimes amidst an unstable security situation, and without knowing whether or when they might be able to return home. Life as an IDP often is very difficult and is characterized by instability.

Beyond being a traumatizing experience for IDPs, internal displacement also affects a broader group of people, in particular the host communities in the places to which IDPs flee in search of safety, the communities to which IDPs eventually return or where they resettle, and the people who stayed behind in the areas from which IDPs fled. Internal displacement directly impacts 13 out of the 21 governorates in Yemen. It is a truly national problem, requiring a comprehensive solution.

The Government considers that IDPs, returnees and displacement-affected communities are among the most vulnerable persons in Yemen currently. Meeting the urgent humanitarian needs of IDPs and developing national policy and legislation to address the needs of IDPs, returnees and displacement-affected communities is one of the priorities of the Government for promoting stability and development in Yemen.⁽¹⁾

Despite the efforts undertaken by the Government to address the needs of IDPs, internal displacement remains a significant problem in Yemen which requires greater international attention and support, especially considering the limited resources of Yemen.

In November 2012, the Prime Minister instructed the Ministry of Foreign Affairs (MoFA), the Ministry of Planning and International Cooperation (MoPIC) and the Executive Unit for Internally Displaced Persons (ExU for IDPs) to draft a national policy for addressing and resolving internal displacement in Yemen. A technical committee comprised of representatives of these three Government offices was formed for this purpose, with the office United Nations High Commissioner for Refugees (UNHCR) invited to share technical assistance. The draft developed by the Technical Committee then was discussed at a workshop in April with staff of the ExU for IDPs and a workshop in May with relevant ministries. The draft was enriched by their comments.

The development of this Policy also was informed by a broader consultative process, facilitated by the ExU for IDPs and UNHCR, that brought together representatives of government ministries engaged on IDP issues, governorate and district authorities in the governorates most affected by displacement, civil society organizations, members of host communities, community leaders, United Nations humanitarian and development agencies, international non-governmental organizations (NGOs), donors and, certainly, IDPs and returnees themselves. The consultations generated consensus on the need for this policy as well as on the core principles and recommended priority actions for the Government to take into consideration in the drafting process.

This Policy provides a national framework for addressing and resolving internal displacement in Yemen. It consolidates into one document the main Government decisions regarding internal displacement, identifies current strategic goals and priority actions, reaffirms the rights of IDPs, outlines institutional responsibilities, and defines next steps for its implementation, in particular the development of an implementation plan.

This Policy will be widely disseminated among government authorities, at central and local levels, as well as to other stakeholders, including civil society organizations, United Nations agencies, international NGOs, donors, displacement-affected communities and, above all, to IDPs and returnees themselves. Effective and expeditious implementation of the Policy is an essential tool for helping IDPs to find solutions to their problems and, in so doing, also can contribute to stability in Yemen.

Purpose of the Policy

1. This Policy provides a coherent and comprehensive national framework for responding effectively to internal displacement in Yemen. In addition to restating the rights of IDPs and the responsibilities of the authorities towards them, this Policy identifies current goals and priorities of the Government for responding to internal displacement.

2. The Policy addresses internal displacement in all phases through the following three inter-related goals:

Goal 1- Protecting civilians from involuntary displacement and being prepared to respond to possible displacement;

Goal 2 - Protecting and assisting IDPs during displacement and supporting displacement-affected communities;

Goal 3 - Creating conditions enabling safe, voluntary and durable solutions to internal displacement.

3. This Policy will guide the Government's response to current situations and any future situations of internal displacement, in particular when caused by armed conflict or natural disaster. The Policy shall facilitate strategic planning and guide operational responses by the Government to:

- (a) Protect individuals from involuntary displacement;
- (b) Be prepared to respond in a timely, effective and coordinated manner to any possible displacement that occurs;
- (c) Address the specific needs of IDPs;
- (d) Protect the rights of IDPs in compliance with national legislation and international law;
- (e) Ensure adequate and dignified living conditions for IDPs throughout their displacement;
- (f) Create conditions for voluntary, safe and durable solutions to internal displacement;
- (g) Promote and support the capacities of IDPs and their participation in all efforts to address and resolve their situation; and
- (h) Support host communities and other displacement-affected communities to cope with the impact of displacement on their communities.

4. This Policy will facilitate implementation and coordination of the above-mentioned efforts by serving to:
- (a) Clarify roles and responsibilities as well as the coordination mechanisms among Government institutions, at all levels, to respond to internal displacement;
 - (b) Restate core principles of international humanitarian assistance and coordination of national and international efforts;
 - (c) Guide the Government to allocate resources in the national budget to support IDPs and displacement-affected communities; and
 - (d) Enhance advocacy efforts for the mobilization of resources from the international community when national resources are insufficient to address and resolve internal displacement.

Definitions

For the purposes of this Policy, the terms below are defined as follows:

- Yemen: Republic of Yemen
- Government: Government of the Republic of Yemen
- Supreme Committee: Supreme Committee for Addressing Internal Displacement
- Executive Unit for IDPs: Executive Unit for Internally Displaced Persons
- Internally displaced persons (IDPs) : Persons or groups of persons⁽¹⁾ who had to flee or to leave their homes or places of habitual residence, in particular as a result of or in order to avoid the effects of armed conflict, situations of violence, violations of human rights or natural disasters, and who have not crossed an internationally recognized state border.⁽¹⁾

All persons whose situation meets this definition shall be considered IDPs, irrespective of whether they have been registered⁽²⁾ as such and regardless of whether they live in or outside of camps. This definition does not confer any legal status to a person whose situation this definition describes; it simply describes the factual situation of being internally displaced. Nor does registration as an IDP automatically entitle IDPs to food or other specific assistance, for which eligibility is determined on the basis of an assessment of need.

- Displacement-affected communities: Communities who remained in their home areas during the armed conflict or natural disaster, host communities in the areas to which IDPs flee, and communities in the areas where IDPs choose to settle in the long-term.

STANDARDS and PRINCIPLES

Legal Standards

1. This Policy is to be implemented in accordance with the Constitution and national legislation of the Republic of Yemen.
2. The Policy also is based on and to be implemented in accordance with the commitments of the Republic of Yemen under international law, in particular international human rights law and international humanitarian law.⁽³⁾

- 3- The Government of Yemen's efforts should be supported by the international community in order for the Government to be able to fully assume its responsibilities towards IDPs.
- 4- IDPs have the right to request and to receive protection and humanitarian assistance from the Government.
- 5- Humanitarian assistance shall be provided expeditiously, on the basis of need. Certain IDPs, such as children, especially unaccompanied minors, expectant mothers, mothers with young

- 9- The needs of the broader “displacement-affected communities” also shall be addressed while addressing the specific concerns of IDPs.

GOALS AND PRIORITY ACTIONS

Goal 1 -

Protecting Civilians from Involuntary Displacement and Being Prepared for Displacement

Every person has the right to be protected against being involuntarily displaced from her or his home or place of habitual residence. This prohibition of displacement applies as a general rule, including during armed conflict and natural disasters:

- (a) In situations of armed conflict, it is prohibited to displace civilians unless their security or imperative military reasons so demand;

- (b) In cases of natural disasters, displacement is prohibited unless the safety and health of those affected requires their evacuation.

In order to realize this goal, the Government shall take the following measures:

1. Prevent and avoid conditions that might lead to involuntary displacement of persons;
2. Identify and regularly monitor, in particular through the Executive Unit for IDPs in collaboration with other relevant Government authorities, areas at risk of armed conflict and tensions or natural disasters, report any potential or actual displacement of populations to all relevant authorities, and thereby serve as an early warning mechanism;
3. Take all necessary measures to prevent any armed conflict, other hostilities and tensions and to contain and avoid escalation of any such situations that do occur in order to avoid any potential involuntary displacement;
4. Protect the civilian population against any violent actions or natural disasters;
5. Enhance early warning systems and emergency preparedness regarding displacement due to natural disasters, in particular by:
 - (a) Monitoring and reporting on, through the General Authority for Geological Survey and Minerals and the Civil Aviation and Meteorology Authority, areas at risk of natural disasters;
 - (b) Preparing, through the Executive Unit for IDPs in collaboration with all relevant Government authorities, contingency plans that include measures to reduce the risk of displacement and minimize the effects of displacement in the event of natural disasters;

- (c) Informing persons residing in areas classified as inhabitable as a result of natural disasters or potential natural disasters of this risk and supporting them to safely move from the area and to resettle in a safe location;
 - (d) Establishing, in the event of natural disasters, an operational cell comprised of all relevant Government entities, to coordinate the response to the natural disaster;
 - (e) Taking all necessary measures to assist and protect affected persons including IDPs;
6. Ensure, in particular through the Executive Unit for IDPs, that an adequate supply of humanitarian assistance, including food and medicine, is stockpiled for use in emergencies.

Goal 2 -

Protecting and Assisting Internally Displaced Persons and Supporting Displacement-Affected Communities

Displacement exposes IDPs to a multitude of risks, which shall be addressed through respect for the following principles and implementation by the government of the following measures:

Physical safety and security

1. Every human being has the right to life and security of person; no one shall be arbitrarily deprived of her or his life.
2. IDPs' right to life and security shall be protected by the Government by taking all possible measures including to:
 - (a) Protect all IDPs, against any attacks, violent acts or other physical harm, including in situations outside of armed conflict;
 - (b) Ensure respect for the civilian and humanitarian nature of IDP camps, settlements and other sites;
 - (c) Provide law enforcement and security in and around IDP camps, settlements and other sites;

- (d) Protect IDPs against any attack on their personal dignity and on their physical, mental and moral integrity, including any form of indecent assault.

IDP Registration

1. Every IDP meeting the eligibility criteria and procedural requirements specified in the Standard Operating Procedures for IDP Registration in Yemen shall be registered as such without delay by the government represented by the Executive Unit for IDPs, in cooperation with international partners.⁽¹⁾
2. Registration as an IDP does not automatically entitle IDPs to food or other specific assistance, for which eligibility is determined on the basis of an assessment of need.
3. The Government will consider establishing a system for issuing a specific IDP registration card to facilitate access by IDPs to any special assistance and benefits for IDPs provided for in public services.

Adequate Living Conditions

The Government shall ensure that IDPs have safe access to, and shall provide IDPs according to available resources: essential food and potable water; adequate shelter; appropriate clothing; essential health care and medical services; and sanitation. The following sections specify the actions to be taken in the priority areas of concern for IDPs in Yemen: food, shelter and essential household items, water and sanitation, and health care.

Food

Food insecurity is a widespread problem in Yemen: currently over 10 million people (44 percent of the population) are food insecure, of whom five million (22 percent of the population) are severely food insecure. As a result of displacement, IDPs are at heightened risk of food insecurity and malnutrition. They urgently require emergency food assistance immediately once displaced, and due to the loss of livelihoods most IDPs typically also require food assistance for the duration of their displacement.

(1) Such IDP registration is for administrative purposes only. It does not affect the legal status of IDPs nor their rights under national and international law.

1. Every person has the right to essential food.
2. To ensure this right for IDPs in all phases of displacement, the Government, in particular through the Executive Unit for IDPs, and with international assistance as required, will:
 - (a) Ensure that food-insecure IDPs have safe access to adequate life-saving food assistance without delay;
 - (b) Provide food assistance, in-kind and through other modalities (e. g. vouchers) , on a regular and timely basis according to assessed needs and prioritization of assistance to persons most in need;
 - (c) Inform in advance IDPs and returnees of the scheduling of food distributions and their frequency, the content and quantity of the food assistance package, and advance notice of any change to these distributions;
 - (d) Adjust food assistance rations for persons with special needs (e. g. pregnant women, infants, and older persons) and based on changes in family size and changes in family units (e. g. due to marriage, divorce) ;
 - (e) Provide food assistance directly to women heads of household, unaccompanied minors, and the elderly, ensuring special arrangements are in place to distribute food assistance to persons who have disabilities or are facing any other obstacles;
 - (f) Plan and implement, as soon as possible, early recovery and livelihood activities, including agricultural-related livelihood activities, to strengthen the resilience of IDP and displacement-affected communities, mitigate food insecurity, and avoid creating dependency on food assistance among IDPs and other food insecure populations.

Shelter and Essential Household Items

Loss of shelter is an inevitable consequence of displacement and one of the most urgent needs that IDPs face. In Yemen, only a small fraction (5%) of the total IDP population live in camps, where they have been living for a several years in tents that are ill-suited to the harsh weather conditions and provide limited privacy. Some IDPs initially found accommodation with host families; however, as displacement has become protracted and the socio-economic conditions in the country more difficult, the host families also face significant challenges. Some IDPs were able to rent rooms or apartments; however, with limited income-generating opportunities, they often find it difficult to pay the rent for more than a few months and face the threat of eviction. Several thousand IDPs found shelter in unused public buildings, such as schools when these were out of session; however, these buildings were not designed for human residence, are overcrowded and do not meet minimum living standards. Moreover, use of these buildings to accommodate IDPs for a prolonged period disrupts the normal use of these buildings, which can lead to tensions with the host communities. Many other IDPs live in scattered, often remote, spontaneously-established informal settlements on private or public land which lack access to basic services including water and sanitation and IDPs' right of stay is highly tenuous. Some IDPs are living in caves, where living conditions are extremely poor, especially regarding water, sanitation and hygiene.

Ensuring that IDPs have access to safe and adequate shelter is essential for their security, protection from the elements, and their overall health and well-being in all phases of displacement.

In addition, adequate living conditions also must encompass access to basic household items including cooking equipment, mattresses, blankets and other essential non-food items (NFIs).

1. Every person has the right to safe and adequate shelter.
2. To ensure this right for IDPs, the Government, with international assistance as required, will:
 - (a) Ensure that IDPs have access to safe and adequate shelter;
 - (b) Identify and designate, through the Executive Unit in coordination with local authorities, locations for providing safe and adequate shelter for IDPs, legally ensuring IDPs' right of stay in these locations, and establishing camps only as a measure of last resort after exploring all other feasible options, in consultation with IDPs;
 - (c) Ensure that any public buildings (e. g. schools) used as shelter for IDPs are strictly a temporary measure of providing emergency shelter and that alternative, more suitable, and adequate shelter is provided to IDPs as soon as possible;
 - (d) Rehabilitate schools and any other public buildings that served as emergency shelter for IDPs in order that these buildings can be restored to their original function;
 - (e) Replace other basic emergency shelter (e. g. tents) for IDPs with suitable transitional shelter (e. g. mud-brick shelters) as soon as possible;
 - (f) Provide IDPs and persons most in need in displacement-affected communities with essential household items (NFIs) ;
 - (g) Provide support, to the extent possible, to families hosting IDPs, in order to mitigate the economic repercussions of doing so;
 - (h) Develop, through social assistance programs of the Government, a mechanism for providing rental subsidies to IDPs in need;

- (i) Monitor and safeguard against potential arbitrary eviction of IDPs from the places where they reside while displaced, ensuring that any removal of IDPs occurs in accordance with the law;
 - (j) Adjust shelter assistance to take into account changes in the family unit (e. g. marriages and births).

Water and Sanitation

An estimated 13.1 million people in Yemen lack access to safe water and sanitation. Conflict, natural disasters and the displacement of populations create additional barriers to access to safe water and sanitation. The sub-standard and often overcrowded living conditions in which many IDPs live often lack safe access to water and to adequate sanitation. Moreover, the influx of a large number of IDPs into a community can strain existing infrastructure and also affect the host community's access to water and sanitation. In the absence of safe access to water and sanitation, communicable diseases run rampant, malnutrition increases, and women and girls who are required to walk long distances to collect water or to use sanitation facilities are at increased risk of harassment and attack.

1. Every person has the right to have safe access to water and sanitation.
2. To ensure this right for IDPs, the Government, with international assistance as needed, undertakes to:
 - (a) Ensure that IDPs, whether or not they are living in camps, have safe access to water and sanitation in all phases of displacement;
 - (b) Maintain and expand water and sanitation services in localities that witnessed an increase in population as a result of an influx of IDPs, in order both to ensure these basic needs for IDPs and to mitigate the impact on host community's access to water and sanitation;

- (c) Disseminate information and raise awareness among IDPs of the importance of hygiene and sanitation, in particular in areas where a concentration of IDPs reside (e. g. emergency shelters, camps, informal settlements).

Health Care

As a result of the conflict or natural disaster that uprooted them as well as the poor living conditions, food insecurity and other problems they typically experience once displaced, IDPs experience a range of health concerns, including injuries and disabilities, acute or chronic illnesses, psychological trauma, and increased risk of exposure to infectious diseases and epidemics. At the same time, IDPs face difficulties obtaining health care due to obstacles including: lack of financial resources; lack of documentation; and inadequate health care infrastructure in the localities to which IDPs flee or hope to return. The influx of a large number of IDPs into a community also may strain the capacity of existing health care facilities, with repercussions for access to health also for the host communities.

1. Health care is a right of all persons.
2. To ensure this right for IDPs, the Government will assist all wounded and sick IDPs as well as those with disabilities receive to the fullest possible extent and with the least possible delay, the medical care and attention they require. In particular, the Government, with international assistance as needed, will:
 - (a) Provide health and medical services, free of charge to IDPs, including medical examinations, diagnostic services, pharmaceutical interventions (medicines) , surgical operations, ambulatory services, and life-saving treatments, and will waive or reimburse all admission fees and other governmental fees. This applies at all levels of primary health care services provided at public hospitals, medical centres, diagnostic and specialist therapeutic centres⁽¹⁾. The Ministry of Public Health and Population, in coordination with the Executive Unit, shall supervise and ensure the provision of these services;⁽²⁾

- (b) Provide appropriate remedial responses to address emergency medical cases and other severe, chronic or critical medical cases that require additional medical examinations and/or surgeries;⁽³⁾
- (c) Organize, through the Ministry of Health, mobile health teams that regularly are accessible to IDPs and to displacement-affected communities and are adequately resourced with essential supplies and medicines;
- (d) Develop and implement special measures to ensure specific attention to IDP women's health care, including reproductive health care and counselling;
- (e) Ensure that internally displaced children and other children in displacement-affected communities receive essential immunization and are included in all national immunization drives;
- (f) Identify and implement special measures for the prevention of contagious and infectious diseases among IDPs and displacement-affected communities;
- (g) Expand psychological health care and psychosocial counselling services to IDPs and displacement-affected communities;
- (h) Promote hiring from among IDPs qualified medical service professionals (female and male) in order both to ensure access to health care by IDPs and returnees and to create employment opportunities for qualified medical professionals.

(3) Council of Ministers, Resolution No. 38 (2012) concerning Addressing Situations of Internally Displaced Persons, 13 March 2012.

Freedom of Movement

1. Every person, including every IDP, shall enjoy freedom of movement and the freedom to choose her or his residence.
2. IDPs, as other civilians, have the right to seek safety in another part of the country.
3. The Government shall protect IDPs against forcible return to or resettlement in any place where their life, safety, liberty or health would be at risk.

Education

Approximately thirty percent of IDPs in Yemen currently are school-aged children (6-18 years). As a result of displacement, IDPs face a number of obstacles accessing education including: loss of educational certificates and identification documents; unavailability of, or long distances to, educational facilities; overcrowding of any existing facilities in the host communities; inability to pay school fees and for school materials; poverty resulting in higher dropout rates; psychological trauma; and damaged educational infrastructure in areas of possible return. Displacement also disrupted the education of youth who are no longer of school age. In addition, the influx of a large number of IDPs also may have repercussions for access to education for the host community as a result of the sudden increase in the number of students and in those cases where schools are used as emergency shelter for IDPs.

1. Education is a right of all persons, to be guaranteed and facilitated by the Government. Primary education is compulsory and free. Free education at all levels is a principle which the State guarantees and is committed to achieving.
2. To facilitate access to the right to education for IDPs, the Government shall:
 - (a) Ensure that all internally displaced children, whether or not they are living in camps, receive education;

- (j) Promote, through educational curricula and the training of teachers and school administrators, understanding of the phenomenon of internal displacement in Yemen and sensitivity towards the plight and particular vulnerabilities of IDPs, including by disseminating this Policy.

Livelihoods

As a result of displacement, IDPs suddenly lose their usual means of livelihood. Consequently, IDPs face great difficulty in meeting basic needs for their survival, including food, shelter and medical care. The skills upon which IDPs had based their livelihoods prior to their displacement may not be relevant in their new places of residence, especially in cases of displacement from rural to urban areas. The loss of livelihoods that displacement entails increases economic pressures on the household, and can lead to higher incidence of attrition from education, child labour, child recruitment, early marriage and other protection risks. Further, employment opportunities are limited, potentially leading to tension with the host communities. Regaining a livelihood is critically important for IDPs' dignity, self-reliance, and for achieving a durable solution to their displacement.

1. Every person has the right to seek work and to participate in income-generating activities.

2. To ensure this right for IDPs, the Government, in particular through the Ministry for Social Affairs and Labour, the Ministry of Vocational Training and Education and the Executive Unit, with international assistance as required, will:
- (a) Ensure that IDPs have access, on an equal basis, to vocational education and employment opportunities alongside the local community;
 - (b) Provide IDPs with information on vocational education and employment programs;
 - (c) Develop the skills of IDPs through the Ministry of Technical Education and Vocational Training and Ministry of Social Affairs and Labour, in areas that are relevant to the local market (e. g. tailoring, weaving, construction, mechanics, welding, bee-keeping, midwifery, and computers) , taking into account the special circumstances of women;
 - (d) Provide IDPs and persons in need in displacement- affected communities with the basic tools and equipment (e. g. agricultural implements including tools, seeds and fertilizers, mechanical tools, fishing equipment) to be able to engage in livelihood activities;
 - (e) Encourage the hiring of qualified IDPs in the public and private sector;
 - (f) Encourage and facilitate the granting of micro-credit and other loans to IDPs and persons in need in displacement-affected communities, including women;
 - (g) Ensure that IDPs are able to access their entitlements to pensions and social protection.

Family Unity

1. Every person has the right to respect of her or his family life.
2. To ensure this right for IDPs, the Government of Yemen shall:
 - (a) Ensure that family members who wish to remain together shall be allowed to do so;
 - (b) Facilitate the reunification of families which are separated by displacement, as quickly as possible, particularly when children are involved;
 - (c) Establish urgently, through the Ministry for Social Affairs and Labour, interim care arrangements for separated children.
2. Every IDP has the right to know the fate and whereabouts of missing relatives. To ensure this right, the Government shall:
 - (a) Endeavour to establish the fate and whereabouts of IDPs reported missing;
 - (b) Inform the next of kin on the progress of the investigation and notify them of any result;
 - (c) Facilitate the return of any mortal remains to the next of kin or dispose of them respectfully.

Social Assistance

Adding to already difficult living conditions in Yemen before displacement, the experience of displacement exacerbates living conditions as a result of negative impacts such as loss of livelihood, separation from communities and sometimes even from family, new injuries or illnesses, psychosocial trauma, and the loss of usual coping mechanisms. Social assistance provides critical support for persons most in need among IDPs and in the broader community. Yet, IDPs can face difficulties accessing social assistance services due to obstacles including: registration requirements based on physical presence in one's place of permanent residence; loss of documentation; destruction of the records in government offices as a result of conflict or disaster; and difficulties transferring their eligibility or registering anew in the new localities to which IDPs flee.

1. The Government shall guarantee social assistance for all persons who require it.
2. To facilitate access by IDPs most in need to the social assistance they require, the Government shall:
 - (a) Ensure that all IDPs and returnees who meet the eligibility criteria for national social assistance programs, including the criteria of the Social Welfare Fund, are able to access this assistance regardless of their location;
 - (b) Facilitate IDPs' initial registration or re-registration for social assistance, by addressing any obstacles IDPs face due to loss of required documentation;
 - (c) Re-register for social assistance IDPs who qualified for this prior to their displacement and who continue to meet the eligibility criteria, by transferring their records and registration from their place of origin to their current location, introducing appropriate and effective measures for re-establishing IDPs' eligibility in cases where the original administrative records of the Government have been lost due to conflict or natural disaster;
 - (d) Allocate required funds, with the support of the international community, to expand social assistance programs, including in areas affected by displacement, to ensure access to social assistance by persons in need among IDPs and displacement-affected communities.

Documentation

1. Every person, including every IDP, has the right to have personal identification documentation. To ensure this right for IDPs, the Government will facilitate the issuance to IDPs of legal documentation or the replacement of any legal documentation (such as personal identification card, birth certificate, marriage certificate, family card, and passport) lost in the course of displacement, without imposing unreasonable conditions.
2. The Government also will assist IDPs to replace free of charge other relevant documentation that was lost or destroyed as a result of their displacement, including educational records, professional certification, certificates of vocational training and property deeds.

Protection of Property Rights

1. No one shall be deprived of property and possessions without a legal judgment. The property and possessions of all persons, including IDPs, shall be protected against damage in all circumstances.
2. The property and possessions left behind by IDPs in their place of habitual residence shall be protected against destruction and arbitrary or illegal appropriation, occupation or use.
3. The Government also will ensure that IDPs are able to reclaim their property, after proving ownership, and to receive compensation for any damage caused to their property⁽¹⁾.

Protection of Children from Military Recruitment

1. In no circumstances shall children, including IDP children, be recruited nor be required or permitted by any party to a conflict to take part in hostilities.

(1) See also below, Goal 3, section on Property Compensation and Restitution.

2. The Government shall undertake awareness-raising campaigns and take all necessary measures to protect children from military recruitment.

Political Participation

1. Every adult citizen has the right to participate in governmental and public affairs, including the right to vote.
2. To ensure this right for IDPs, the Government, through the Supreme Committee for Elections and Referendums, shall:
 - (a) Ensure that IDPs are able to participate in all elections and referendums on an equal basis to all other citizens;
 - (b) Adopt special procedures to address obstacles that IDPs may face in exercising their right to vote and to stand for election (e. g. regarding voter registration and required documentation);
 - (c) Allow IDPs to register as electors and participate in elections and referendums either in their place of origin or in their place of residence while displaced;
 - (d) Provide IDPs with timely information on any specific procedures for their political participation as well as general voter information.

Goal 3 -

IDPs have a right to a solution to their displacement and the Government has a responsibility to undertake all possible efforts to create the conditions enabling IDPs to attain a safe, voluntary and durable solution to displacement.

IDPs have the right to choose, based on accurate information and a voluntary decision, among three possible solutions to displacement: (1) returning and reintegrating into the community where they lived before being displaced; (2) settling and integrating in the locality where they resided while displaced; or (3) relocating and integrating in a different area of the country.

- (b) Rehabilitate infrastructure (water, sanitation, electricity and roads) as soon as conditions permit.

Health:

- (a) Ensure access to health care in places of IDP return or other places of durable solutions, including the availability of essential medical supplies and adequate stocks of medicine.
