

CONTENTS

| | |
|--|-----------|
| Acknowledgments | xi |
| 1 Cooperation, Ambiguity and Tension | 1 |
| Axis of convenience | 3 |
| The new geopolitics | 5 |
| The policy context | 7 |
| The many faces of Sino-Russian relations | 9 |
| 2 The Burden of History | 17 |
| Russia's "Mongol complex" | 18 |
| Mutual isolation | 19 |
| The age of imperialism | 21 |
| "Fraternal" relations and the Sino-Soviet split | 23 |
| From tension to confrontation and back | 26 |
| Gorbachev's initiatives | 27 |
| The Yeltsin-Jiang years | 29 |
| Great expectations, partial achievements | 30 |
| Geopolitics and instrumentalism | 32 |
| Duality and ambivalence | 35 |
| 3 Strategic Partnership—Image and Reality | 38 |
| Defining strategic partnership | 40 |
| Sino-Russian "strategic partnership" | 41 |
| The Russian agenda | 43 |
| The Chinese agenda | 45 |

viii Contents

| | |
|--|------------|
| Latent tensions | 47 |
| The myth of identical views—the case of strategic stability | 50 |
| The values gap | 52 |
| A relationship of tactical convenience? | 53 |
| The axis of convenience | 54 |
| 4 The “Yellow Peril”—Engagement in the Russian Far East | 56 |
| The task facing Putin | 58 |
| Chinese “illegal migration” | 59 |
| Social and civilizational challenges | 62 |
| Chinese policy | 63 |
| Russian attitudes | 65 |
| A failure of strategy | 66 |
| Interregional trade | 67 |
| The Russian Far East and Sino-Russian “strategic partnership” | 69 |
| An uncertain future | 70 |
| 5 “Peaceful Rise” and the Shifting Sino-Russian Balance | 73 |
| The military balance | 74 |
| Chinese military planning | 78 |
| Russian arms transfers to China | 79 |
| China’s “peaceful rise” and the implications for Russia | 80 |
| The economic balance | 81 |
| The trade imbalance | 84 |
| Asymmetrical partnership | 86 |
| 6 Cooperation and Competition in Central Asia | 91 |
| The 9/11 effect—the Russian perspective | 93 |
| The 9/11 effect—the Chinese perspective | 95 |
| A new Great Game? | 97 |
| Competing agendas—the view from Moscow | 98 |
| Chinese interests, strategy, and tactics | 101 |
| The Shanghai Cooperation Organization | 104 |
| Russia and China in the SCO | 110 |
| Strategic partnership or emergent competition? | 113 |
| 7 East Asia—Arena of the Great Powers | 115 |
| “The cauldron of civilizations” | 116 |
| China’s emergence | 117 |
| Russian policy toward East Asia | 120 |
| Chinese reactions to Russia’s Asian policy | 127 |
| The expedient relationship | 128 |

| | | |
|-----------|--|------------|
| 8 | The Geopolitics of Energy | 132 |
| | Imperfect complementarities 133 | |
| | The role of energy in Russian foreign policy 135 | |
| | Just business—Chinese energy policy 141 | |
| | More problems than solutions—the ESPO saga 143 | |
| | Learning the lessons 146 | |
| | Russia between East and West 148 | |
| | Faking it—Russia as an “energy superpower” 150 | |
| | Growing asymmetry 151 | |
| 9 | The Grand Chessboard Revisited—Russia, China, and the United States | 154 |
| | The “Grand Chessboard” 155 | |
| | Strategic triangularism—genesis and development 157 | |
| | Triangularism in the post–Cold War era 159 | |
| | The bankruptcy of triangularism 160 | |
| | A new lease of life 162 | |
| | Putin’s agenda for a resurgent Russia 163 | |
| | Beijing’s globalist agenda 165 | |
| | Strategic balancing versus strategic inclusion 168 | |
| | The re-emergence of strategic anarchy 169 | |
| | Evolution of the Grand Chessboard 170 | |
| 10 | Conclusion—From “Strategic Partnership” to Strategic Tension | 173 |
| | Finding a middle way 174 | |
| | The axis of convenience 180 | |
| | The future 183 | |
| | Five scenarios for the long term 183 | |
| | Final thoughts 194 | |
| | Notes | 197 |
| | Index | 267 |

x Contents

Maps

| | |
|---|------------|
| Russia and China | xiv |
| Changes in the Sino-Russian Border, Nineteenth Century | 22 |
| Central Asia | 90 |
| Oil and Gas Pipelines in Eastern Siberia and the Far East | 142 |

Tables

| | |
|---|-----|
| 5-1. Sino-Russian Trade, 1992–2007 | 87 |
| 6-1. Russian Trade with Central Asia, 1994–2007 | 99 |
| 6-2. Chinese Trade with Central Asia, 1992–2007 | 102 |

Figure

| | |
|--|----|
| 5-1. Comparison between Russian and Chinese Gross Domestic Product, 1992–2007 | 83 |
|--|----|