

Contents

Acknowledgments	vii
1 INTRODUCTION
Technological Change and the Constitutional Future	1
Jeffrey Rosen
PART ONE
THE FUTURE OF SURVEILLANCE
2 Is the Fourth Amendment Relevant in a Technological Age?	11
Christopher Slobogin
3 Use Restrictions and the Future of Surveillance Law	37
Orin S. Kerr
4 Cyberthreat, Government Network Operations, and the Fourth Amendment	47
Jack Goldsmith
PART TWO
THE FUTURE OF FREE EXPRESSION AND PRIVACY
5 The Deciders: Facebook, Google, and the Future of Privacy and Free Speech	69
Jeffrey Rosen

6	Is Filtering Censorship? The Second Free Speech Tradition Tim Wu	83
7	A Mutual Aid Treaty for the Internet Jonathan Zittrain	100
PART THREE
THE FUTURE OF NEUROLAW
8	Neuroscience and the Future of Personhood and Responsibility Stephen J. Morse	113
9	Cognitive Neuroscience and the Future of Punishment O. Carter Snead	130
PART FOUR
GENETIC ENGINEERING AND THE FUTURE OF CONSTITUTIONAL PERSONHOOD
10	Reproductive Rights and Reproductive Technology in 2030 John A. Robertson	155
11	The Problems and Possibilities of Modern Genetics: A Paradigm for Social, Ethical, and Political Analysis Eric Cohen and Robert P. George	177
12	Endowed by Their Creator? The Future of Constitutional Personhood James Boyle	194
13	Innovation's Darker Future: Biosecurity, Technologies of Mass Empowerment, and the Constitution Benjamin Wittes	214
14	EPILOGUE Translating and Transforming the Future Lawrence Lessig	243
	Contributors	255
	Index	261