Description of Pakistan's Main Political Parties

PPP	Pakistani People's Party	The largest political party in Pakistan, it is center-left and draws the majority of its support from its base in Sindh province as well as Punjab. Includes current President Asif Ali Zardari and Prime Minister Yousaf Raza Gillani.
PML (N)	Pakistani Muslim League- Nawaz	Founded by former Prime Minister Nawaz Sharif in 1993, the PML (N) represents the largest portion of the various wings of the PML. Like the other PML wings, it is center-right and conservative. In 2001, it broke away from the PML (Q) in order to form an opposition to the leadership of then-President Pervez Musharraf.
PML (Q)	Pakistani Muslim League- Quid	Centrist and conservative, the PML (Q) broke away from the PML (N) in 2001 prior to elections in 2002. Formed at the suggestion of then-President Pervez Musharraf, the leadership consisted of staunch supporters of Musharraf and considered him their mentor. However, Musharraf never became an official member, preferring to keep the office of President non-partisan and neutral.
MQM	Muttahida Qaumi Movement	A secular and liberal party, its constituency is rooted in Muslims who immigrated from India following the formation of the Pakistani state in 1947. The vast majority of its influence is focused in Sindh province, particularly the provincial capital Karachi.
ANP	Awami National Party	The ANP is a secular Pashtun party that has its greatest following in the Pashtun dominated Khyber Pakhtunkhwa as well as Pashtun areas of Balochistan.
JUI (F)	Jamiat Ulema-e-Islam- Fazal	A conservative Deobandi Muslim organization, the JUI (F) espouses a strict adherence to Islamic law and is adamantly against Pakistan's closer relations with the U.S. and its increased focus on counter-terrorism. The "F" refers to Maulana Fazal-ur-Rehman, the head of one of two wings of the original JUI and a member of the National Assembly. This wing was the only member of a coalition of conservative religious parties, the Muttahida Majlis-e-Amal (MMA), to take part in the most recent general elections in 2008. After having won 53 seats in the National Assembly in the 2002 general elections (representing Khyber Pakhtunkhwa and Balochistan), this was reduced to 6 in the 2008 elections.

It includes every kind of violation directly affecting journalists (such as murders, imprisonment, physical attacks and threats) and news media (censorship, confiscation issues, searches and harassment). In addition to taking into account abuses attributable to the state, those carried out by armed militias, clandestine organizations or pressure groups are also considered.

The lower the score attained, the higher the degree of press freedom in that respective country. Although there is no specific information given regarding how the overall score was compiled, the top-rated countries for 2007 received an overall score of 0.75, with the median receiving a score of 25.3. The overall average score for the 2007 Index was 31.5.
