

Raymond W. Fogarty

Raymond W. Fogarty is the Director of the John H. Chafee Center for International Business and has been dedicated to international trade for more than 30 years. Fogarty also serves as the director of the the Rhode Island Export Assistance Center, director of World Trade Center Rhode Island, Rhode Island State Trade director, and chair of the District Export Council.

Located at Bryant University, the Chafee Center for International Business provides comprehensive international trade services for businesses to expand into international markets. Fogarty directs all Center operations including strategic visioning, organizational goals, planning, budget management and resource development.

Fogarty has served as a board member for numerous organizations, including the National Association of Small Business International Trade Educators (NASBITE) International board.

In 2016, Fogarty received the NASBITE International John Otis Lifetime Achievement Award for his steadfast commitment to in international trade education. He has also received the Bryant University Distinguished Alumni award and his Center was awarded the President's E-Star Award, also in 2016.

Fogarty holds a B.S. in Business Administration from Bryant University and resides in Harmony, Rhode Island with his wife Phoebe and has four grown children.