Background Information:

The Peace Corps Partnership Program (PCPP) is a small grants program, established in 1964, that supports Volunteer-led, community-initiated projects funded by donations from private sector entities and the general public. The uniqueness of PCPP is that it raises funds for a Volunteer's project from the private sector (including family and friends of Volunteers), processes donations, and liaises with donors on a Volunteer's behalf, thereby connecting communities around the world. PCPP is available to support projects in all Peace Corps posts, across all six sectors. In FY16, Peace Corps Volunteers and their counterparts carried out 924 projects in 56 countries using private sector resources donated to the agency.

The Peace Corps Let Girls Learn Fund was established in 2015 to specifically support PCPP girls' education and empowerment projects. Private sector entities and the general public interested specifically in girls education and empowerment may donate to specific PCPP projects to support activities focused on girls' education and empowerment.

The Peace Corps Fund is a general fund to support special initiatives and any other agency programs or activities in furtherance of the purposes of the Peace Corps Act.

USAID and the Peace Corps have a long history of inter-agency collaboration at the global, regional, and country level to support the mutual development goals of USAID and the Peace Corps. Global inter-agency collaborations with USAID in FY16 include Global Food Security, Ending Preventable Child and Maternal Deaths, Global Education Framework, and the Small Project Assistance program. Country level collaborations in FY16 include Feed the Future II in Ghana and Global Health and Food Security in Nepal. The Super Typhoon Maysak Response program in Peace Corps/ Micronesia is supported by USAID's regional mission in the Philippines.

Through the President's Emergency Plan for AIDS Relief (PEPFAR), Peace Corps Volunteers implement PEPFAR 3.0, "Controlling the Epidemic: Delivering on the Promise of an AIDS-Free Generation," through the targeted goals of scaling up prevention, caring for people infected with and affected by HIV, and facilitating access to treatment; evidence-based interventions for populations at greatest risk; promoting sustainability, efficiency, and effectiveness; strengthening local healthcare and support systems; and driving results with science. The Peace Corps is currently active in 25 PEPFAR countries, 10 of which PEPFAR considers to be long-term strategy countries. Most importantly, all Volunteers play a special role in their contributions to PEPFAR through their ability to reach remote communities and institute sustainable programs in coordination with local leaders and change agents.

Note: None of the funds raised by the Peace Corps may support core mission-related expenses that are covered by Congressional appropriations. Funds raised support activities that deepen the agency's work and further its mission, but do not include activities supported by the agency's appropriated budget. Furthermore, one hundred percent of all funds raised through PCPP are expended on Volunteer-led projects. All donations to the Peace Corps are tax deductible under section 170(c)1 of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986, as amended.
